BEYOND THE CROSSROADS

Religious Life in the 21st Century

Amy Hereford, CSJ

"Most previous books about religious life reflect the perspectives of theologians, psychologists, and sociologists who entered their communities before or during the changes of Vatican II. Sister Amy provides the valuable insights of newer generations: both those who came in the 1980s and those entering today. Beyond the Crossroads is valuable and long-overdue."

—S. Patricia Wittberg, SC

Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate

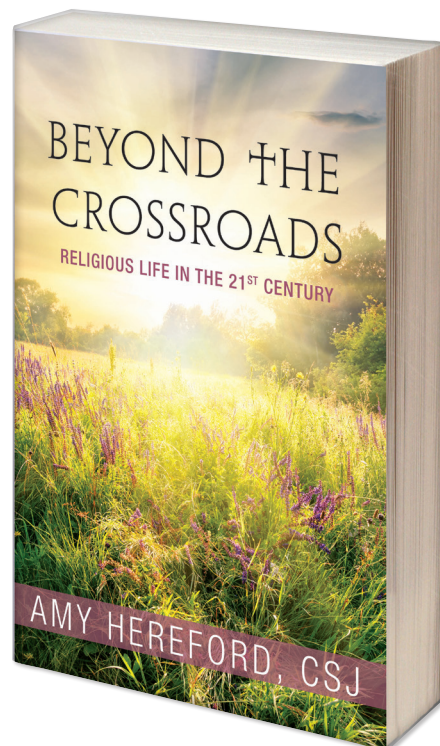

"Throughout this thoughtfully written book, the search for authentic community occurs on virtually every page. Evolving from the former institution to what increasingly resembles an ecosystem, religious life in the 21st century has largely outgrown both the motherhouse and the parish-based house in favor of the 'wildflower meadow,' a small interdependent group acting as a leaven with expansive possibilities for new forms of collaboration. For Hereford, this is the new horizon capable of promising future realistic hope for the vowed life."

—Diarmuid O'Murchu,

author, Religious Life in the 21st Century

Those in religious life face an uncertain and changing future. Building on her previous acclaimed work, Religious Life at the Crossroads, Sister Amy Hereford draws attention to emerging currents, particularly among the smaller cohorts of younger religious, to reflect on the ongoing meaning of vows, formation, community, and mission, amidst rapid changes in the church and society.

Amy Hereford, CSJ, is a Sister of St. Joseph of Carondelet from St. Louis. She works as an attorney and canonist, consulting with many religious institutes on a wide variety of legal matters.
